card with an outrageous 20% interest rate. It will take her 180 months to pay off her $8000 balance. That is fifteen years! She will end up paying $5,612 in interest. That is nearly four times higher than what Donna will have paid for the same amount of credit. Somebody needs to tell Cheryl to pick up the phone and make a call.

Your Life Won't Always Be This Way

If you carried the average $8000 balance and did not have the fees and penalties and interest tacked on by the credit card companies, you would be able to pay off your debt and live your life without the relentless pressure of bills and creditors and collectors. It is a numbers game, and they want to keep you oblivious, somehow thinking that you are at fault for what they have created. You have nothing to be ashamed of. The debt that they are burdening you with is an illusion, manufactured by the credit card industry!

> Is there a "Not tonight, I have a headache" fee?

We live in a country that allows the creditors to create fees, one for every day of the week, and twice on Saturdays and Sundays: stop payment fee, annual fee, over-the-limit fee, late payment fee, finance fee, cash advance fee, declined check fee, research fee....

Did I miss any? You get the point. Those are all fees that you can see on your monthly statement. I did not make up any of those. The banks did. Plus, the interest rates have skyrocketed in recent years, and often, the cardholder is not even aware that his or her rate has gone up. Credit card debt is out of control, and debt collectors have whirled and whorled out of control as well.

Debt Avoidance ≠ Debt Riddance

Being in debt over your head is a dreadful situation, but it is just that – a situation; and remember that it is only temporary. The banks and credit card companies want you to be in debt forever, but with the methods of Debt Cures, you will get to the end of the tunnel.
