Mortgage A loan based on the value of a property. The loan is used either to buy the property itself or the money can be used by its owner to raise funds for other purposes. If the borrower doesn't repay the loan, the lender can take and sell the property. A mortgage is a kind of secured loan with the property acting as the security.

Multinational Operating in several countries. A multinational (or transnational) corporation is a large company that produces goods abroad.

Nationalization The transfer of a firm or industry from private to public (state) ownership by the government. The opposite of privatization.

Neoclassical economics The dominant approach to economics today. It developed from the free-market ideas of classical economics and is based on the concepts of supply and demand and individuals making rational choices.

Neoliberalism An approach to economics and social studies that favors free trade and greater privatization, along with minimal government intervention.

Privatization Selling state-owned businesses to private investors. The opposite of nationalization.

Production The process of creating goods or services for sale. Also the total amount produced over a set period.

Productivity The measure of output by an individual, a company, or a whole country. It's usually calculated by dividing the total output over a set period by the number of hours worked, or by the number of workers.

Profit A firm's total revenue minus the total costs.

Protectionism A policy aimed at protecting a country's economy from foreign competitors, by imposing trade barriers such as tariffs or quotas on