went to plan. That is a lot of work for such a small amount of profit
.with no guarantees

You could rent it out and get 9 per cent ROI. In reality, it would be (4
.slightly less but even so, I am not getting excited

Now let’s compare this with what Steve ended up actually buying. The properties were both pretty much identical and in the same area, so I will .just outline one of the two properties he bought

:Here are Steve’s new deals – these took less than one day to find

Asking price: £85,000
Market value: £87,000
Agreed sale: £85,000
Renovation: £6,000
Monthly mortgage payments: £185
Bills: £300
Monthly rent: £1350

Because this property is so much cheaper, Steve was able to source and buy .two of these deals using his £58,000 worth of savings

Conveniently, they are both located within two miles from his own home so he manages them himself and they are both giving him a cashflow of £865
