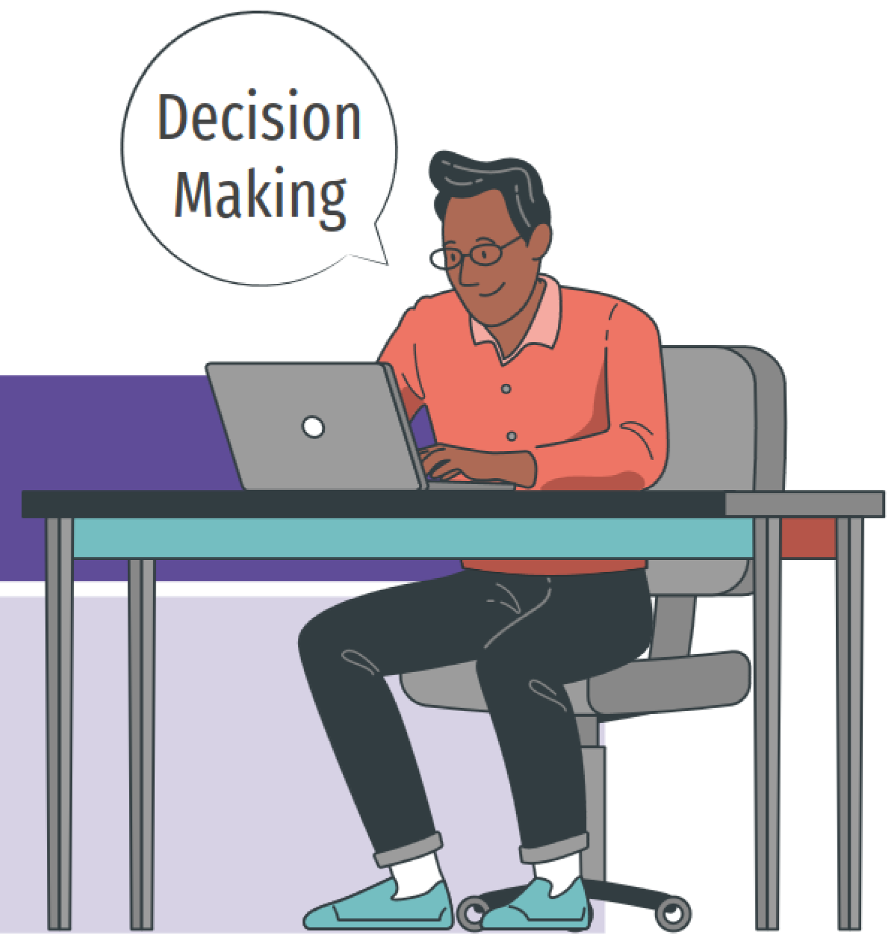
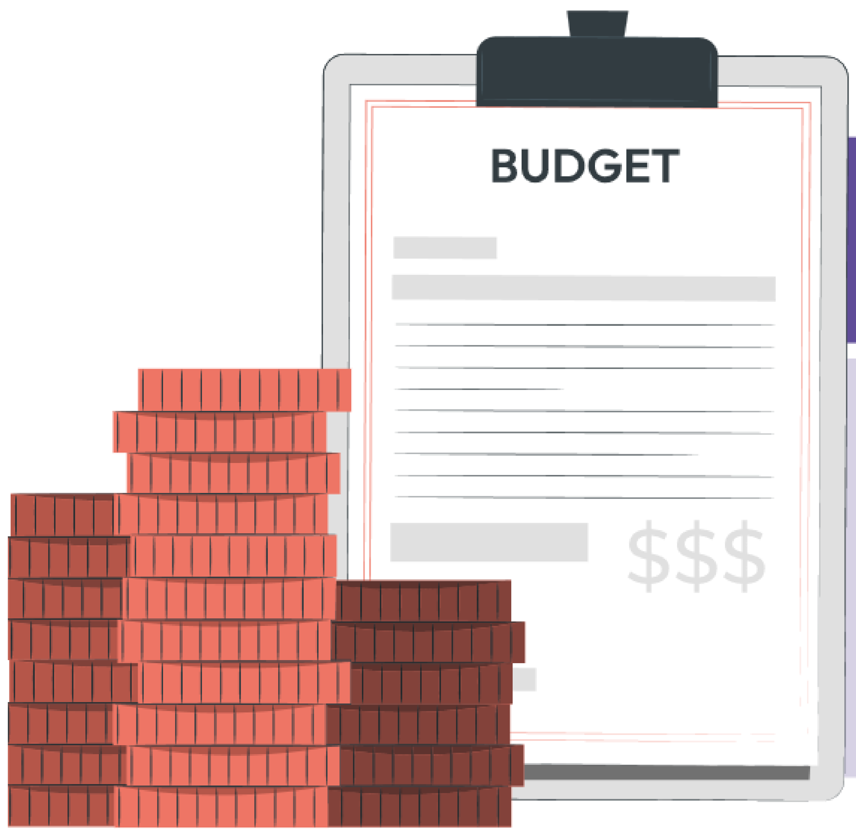
2. Why Bootstrapping Works



You Own It All

Every decision is yours. No board approvals, no investor pressure. If you want to pivot overnight, you can.

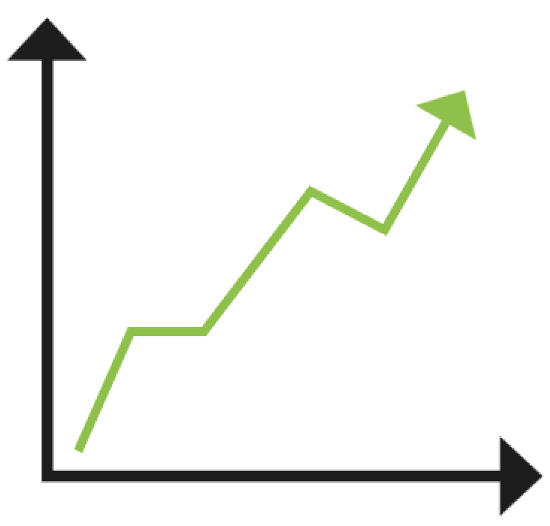


You Learn Financial Discipline

When it's your money, you spend wisely. Bootstrapped founders negotiate better, hire cautiously, and focus on revenue.

You Control Your Growth Pace

You scale at a pace that makes sense for your business, not at the speed investors demand.



3. The Downsides of Bootstrapping

Growth Takes Time

Without external capital, everything moves slower.

Personal Financial Risk

If the business struggles, your savings take the hit.

Limited Resources

Without outside money, hiring, R&D, and marketing budgets remain tight.
