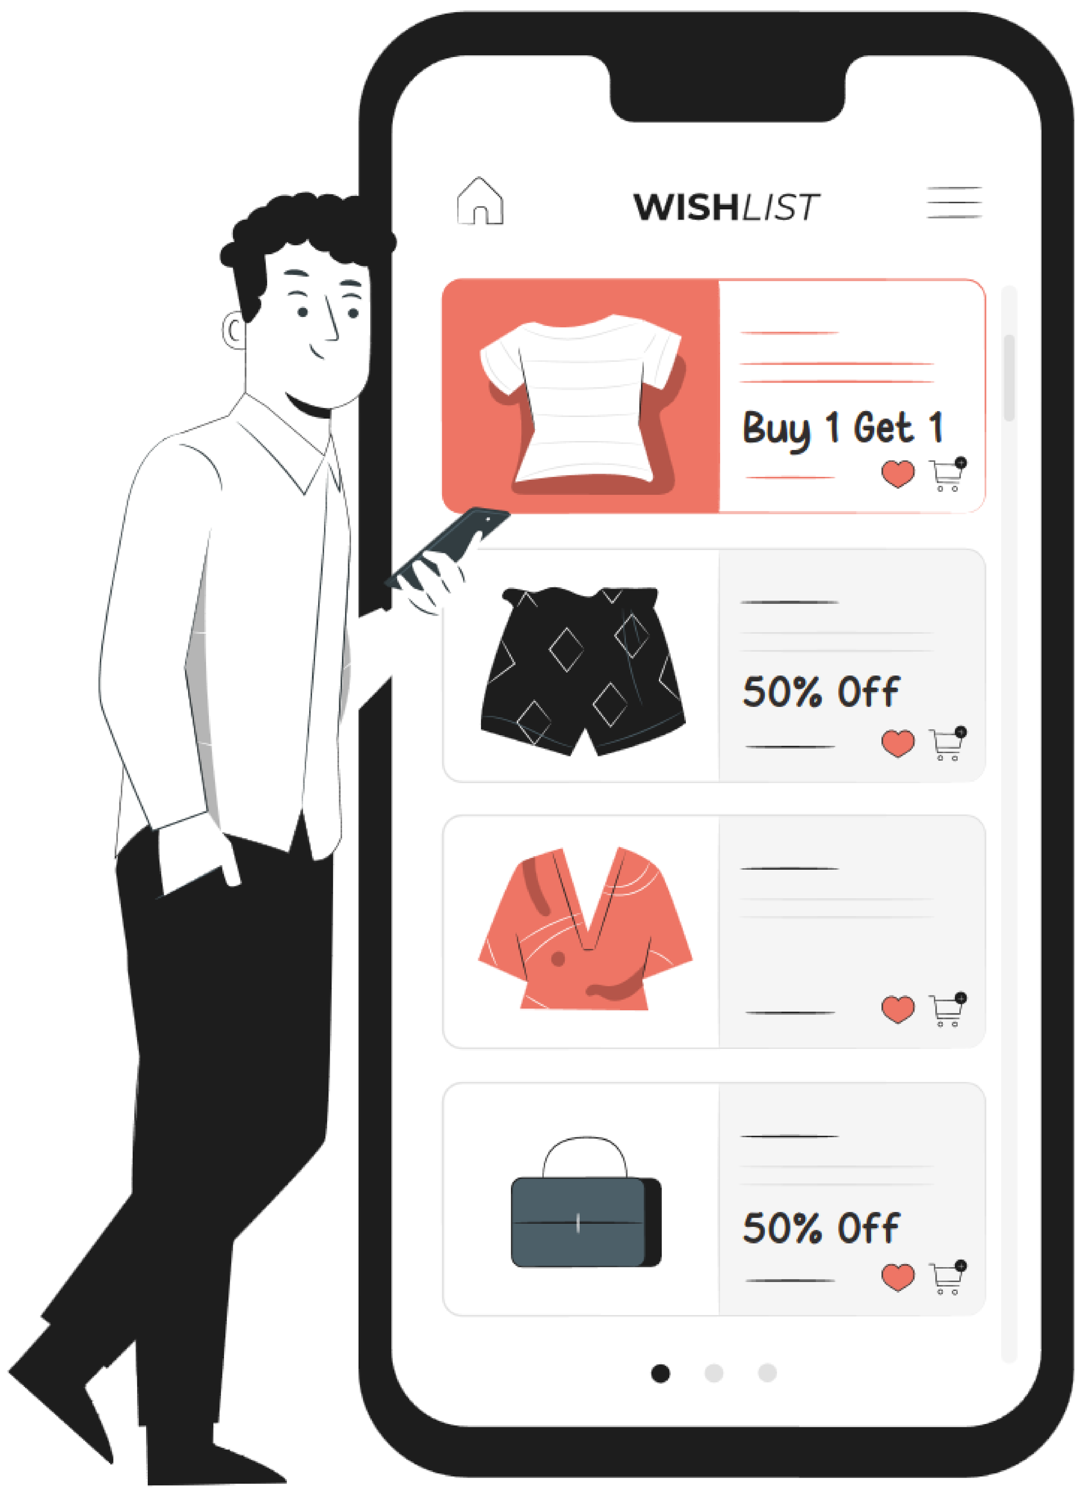
D. Framing Effect

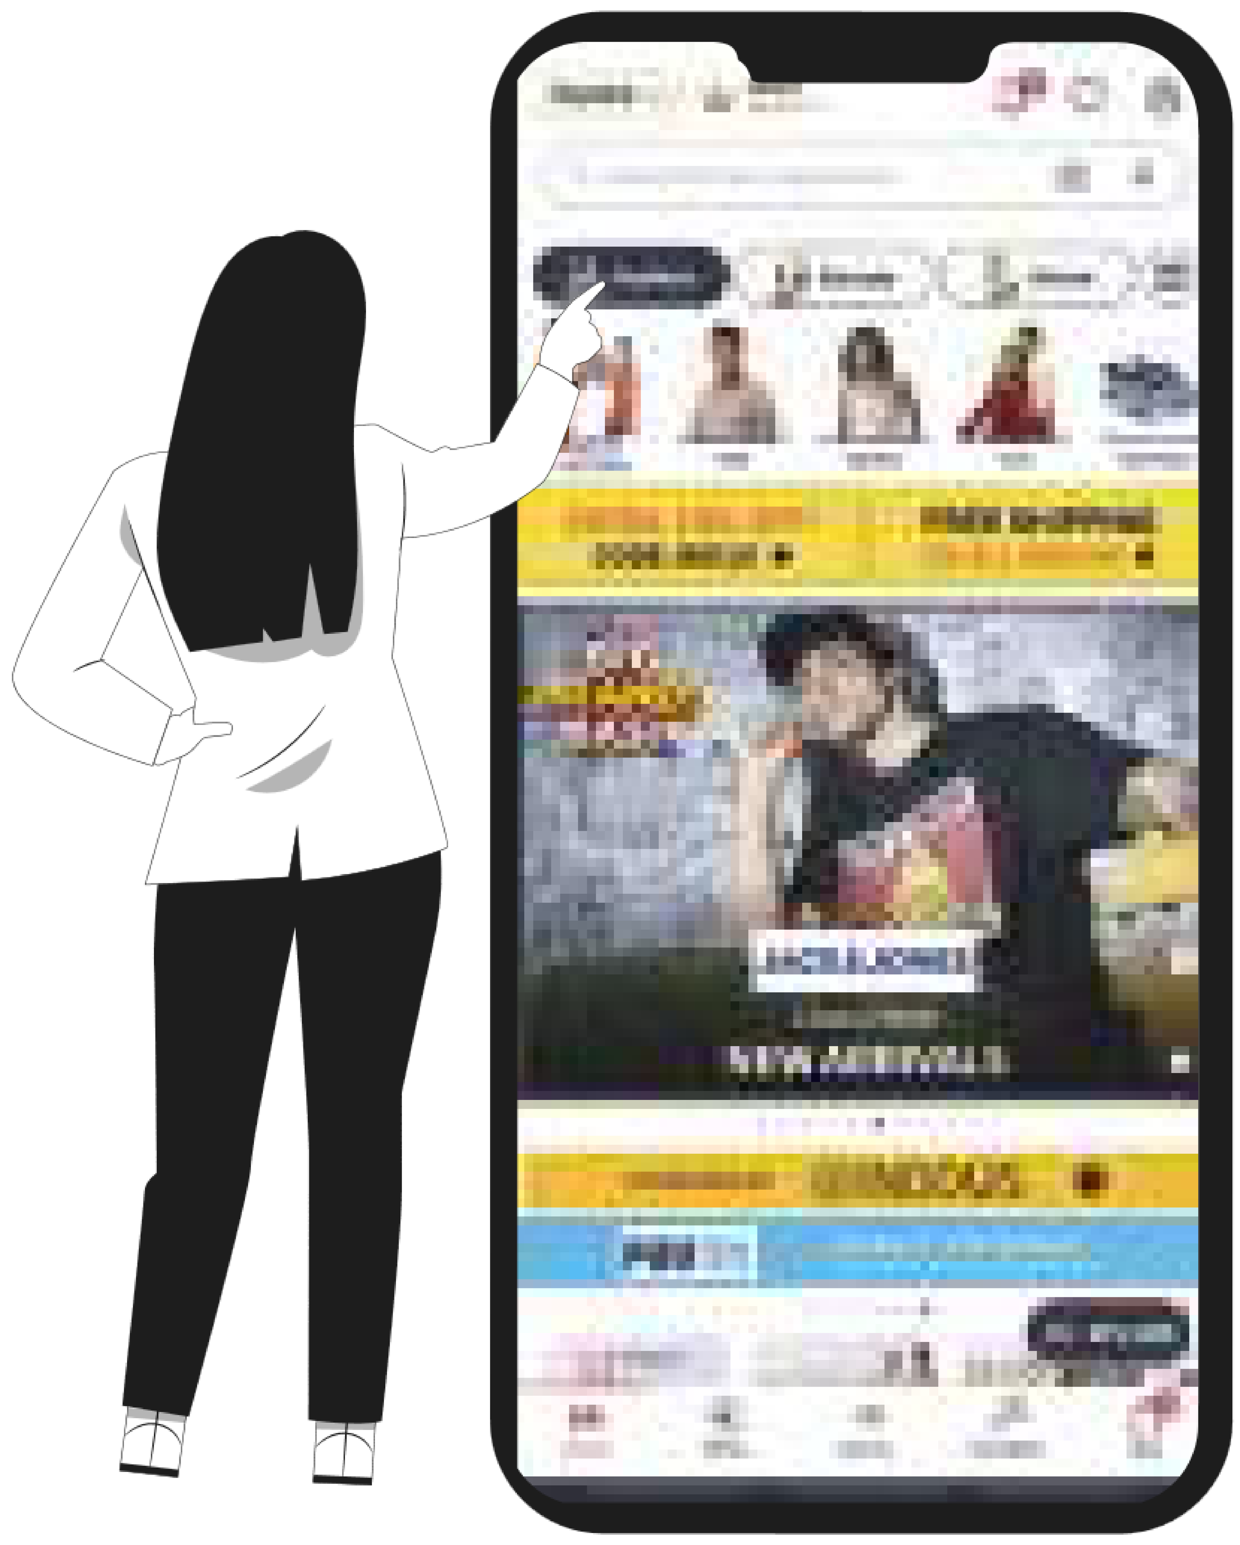
The framing effect is a cognitive bias where people react differently to the same information depending on how it is presented. People tend to be more sensitive to potential losses than equivalent gains.

Standard Offers



- There is no sense of urgency in the offers.
- Customers respond casually.

Framing Offers

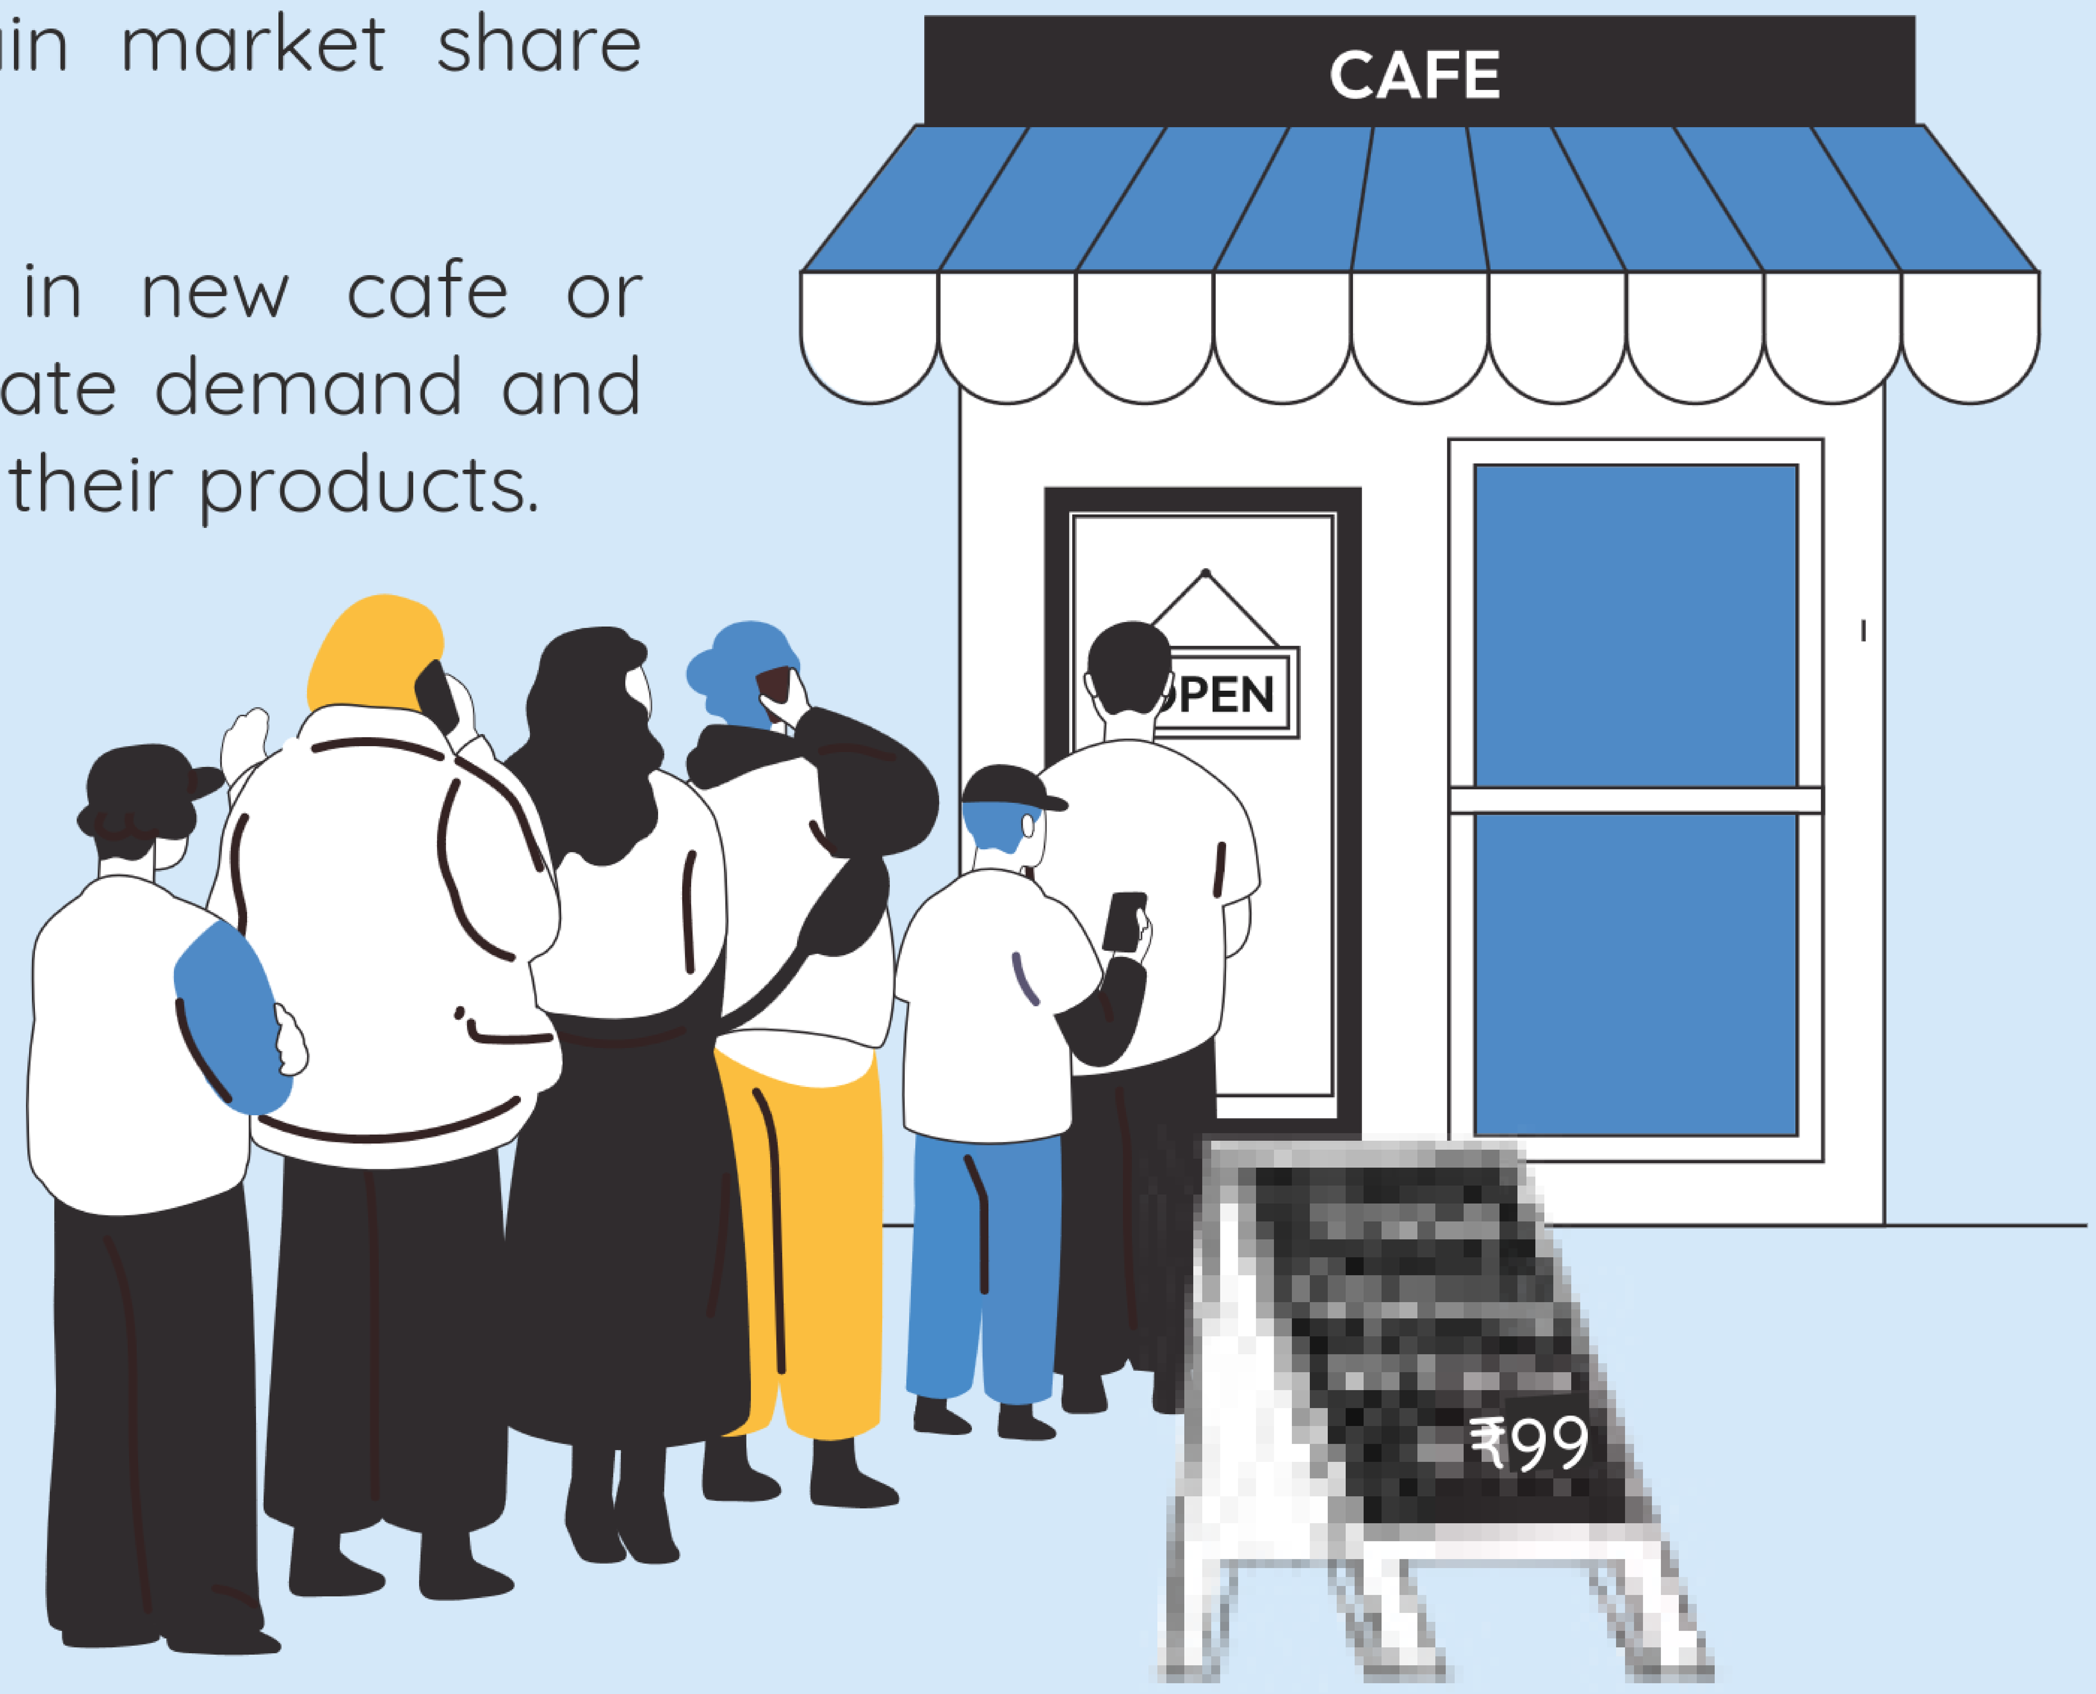


- Creates a sense of urgency.
- Triggers FOMO (Fear of Missing Out), prompting faster decisions.

E. Penetration Pricing

It is a marketing strategy where a product or service is initially offered at a minimal price to attract customers and gain market share quickly.

This strategy is often used in new cafe or food chain launches to generate demand and encourage more people to try their products.



Initially, products offered at minimal prices to attract customers.
