

promoted me to...(drumroll please) cashier! I thought about it long and hard, for exactly a nanosecond, and replied, “Thanks but no thanks.”

First, there was no way I could learn much being stuck behind a cash register. Second, I’d already learned what I came to learn. Mission accomplished!

So that’s what I mean by being in the “corridor.” It means entering the arena where you want to be in the future, in any capacity, to get started. This is far and away the best way to learn about a business, because you see it from the inside. Second, you can make the contacts you need, which you could never have made from the outside. Third,
