

money builds your churches, money sends your missionaries, and money pays your preachers....I say, then, you ought to have money. If you can honestly attain unto riches...it is your...godly duty to do so. It is an awful mistake of these pious people to think you must be awfully poor in order to be pious.

Conwell's passage makes several excellent points. The first refers to the ability to be trusted. Of all the attributes necessary for getting rich, having others trust you has to be near the top of the list. Think about it, would you do
