

business with a person you didn't trust at least to some extent? No way! Meaning that to get rich, there's a good chance many, many, many people must trust you, and there's a good chance that for that many people to trust you, you have to be quite trustworthy.

What other traits does a person need to get rich and, even more importantly, stay rich? No doubt there are always exceptions to any rule, but for the most part, who do you have to be to succeed at anything? Try some of these characteristics on for size: positive, reliable, focused, determined, persistent, hardworking, energetic, good with people, a competent
