

suggestion: since it's a lot easier to change your story than your worthiness, instead of worrying about changing your worthiness, change your story. It's a lot faster and cheaper. Simply make up a new and much more supportive story and live into that.

“Oh, but I couldn't do that,” you say. “I'm not qualified to decide that I'm worthy. That has to come from someone else.” Sorry, I say, that's not quite accurate, which is a nice way of saying “Bullpoo!” It wouldn't make a difference what anyone says or said in the past, because you have to believe it and buy into it for it to have any effect and that can't come from anyone