

part-time clients may grow to become fulltime clients, which would then give you the opportunity to leverage yourself, hire other people to get all the work done, and eventually you'll be running your own full-on business.

You might think, "My employer would never go for that." I wouldn't be too sure about that. You have to understand, it costs a company a fortune to have an employee. Not only do they have to pay salary or wages, but they have to pay a whack of money on top of that to the government, often to the tune of 25 percent or more above what the employee earns. Add to that the cost of the benefits package that most employees get, and you've probably got a 50 percent savings to a company that chooses to hire you as an independent consultant. Of course you won't be eligible for many of the benefits you got as an employee, but for what you save in taxes alone, you can buy the best of what you need on your own.

In the end, the only way to earn what you're really worth is to get paid based on your results. Once again, my dad said it best: "You'll never get rich working on straight salary for someone else. If you're going to get a job, make sure you get paid on percentage. Otherwise, go work for yourself!"

Now that's sage advice!

DECLARATION: Place your hand on your heart and say...

"I choose to get paid based on my results."

Touch your head and say...

"I have a millionaire mind!"

MILLIONAIRE MIND ACTIONS

1. If you are currently in a job getting paid based on an hourly wage or salary, create and propose a compensation plan to your employer that would allow you to get paid at least partly based on your individual results as well as the results of the company. If you own your own business, create a compensation plan that allows your employees or even primary suppliers to get paid based more on their results and the results of your company. Put these plans into action immediately.
