

either/or thinking and just plain “programmed garbage” that is not supportive to your happiness and success.

It’s also not supportive to those around you, especially to children. If you’re that adamant about being a good person, then be “good” enough not to infect the next generation with the disempowering beliefs you may inadvertently have adopted.

If you really want to live a life without limits, whatever the situation, let go of either/or thinking and maintain the intention to have “both.”

DECLARATION: Place your hand on your heart and say...

“I always think ‘both.’ ”

Touch your head and say...

“I have a millionaire mind!”

MILLIONAIRE MIND ACTIONS

1. Practice thinking and creating ways of having “both.” Whenever alternatives are presented to you, ask yourself, “How can I have both?”
2. Become aware that money in circulation adds to everyone’s life. Each time you spend money, say to yourself, “This money will go through hundreds of people and create value for all of them.”
3. Think of yourself as a role model for others—showing that you can be kind, generous, loving, and rich!

Wealth File #13

Rich people focus on their net worth.

Poor people focus on their working income.

When it comes to money, people in our society typically ask, “How much do you make?” Seldom do you hear the question “What is your net worth?” Few people talk this way, except of course at the country club.

In country clubs, the financial discussion almost always centers around net worth: “Jim just sold his stock options; he’s worth over three million. Paul’s company just went public; he’s worth eight million. Sue just sold her business; she’s now worth twelve million.” At the country
