

- Calculate confidence levels for signals based on model accuracy
- Implement a simple trading simulation using the generated signals
- Track the performance of signals from different models

6. Analyze the results:

- Identify which forecasting methods work best for which types of assets
- Determine the optimal forecast horizon for potential trading signals
- Analyze market conditions when forecasts are most/least reliable
- Suggest potential improvements to the forecasting approach