

truth deprives himself of the power which has done more to help men achieve success than all other forces combined.