

CHAPTER 7

Trading Psychology Is The Most Powerful Weapon

I started the first chapter with my Vipassana meditation experience and why I felt miserable even after making career best profits.

Well this is the story.

It happened on 29-Sep-2016 (India's Surgical Strike Day).

My intraday system indicated a "Short" trade on this day. Besides, that day was also the monthly expiry day for Nifty (there were no weekly options for Nifty in 2016).

I was a pure option buyer during those days as time decay had no great impact (as it was monthly expiry).

So, I had bought a decent quantity of Nifty Puts (PE) after the open at Rs.1.5 premium value.

When I bought PEs, I didn't know that it would become a memorable day for me.

During those days, I used to maintain a "WhatsApp" group and share all my trade details in the group.

I had a friend in the group who is also an expert day trader. Many times we had opposite views, and it was fun to debate/trade with him.

Unfortunately, he also had a bearish view from the market open on that day, and he had also loaded many put options.
