

that wins or loses the game in the end. If a team takes all 10 wickets of the opponents or scores 50-100+ runs, umpire calls wouldn't matter.

Similarly, the market doesn't have any grudge against day traders. Day trading is just a trading type. If you are right, the market rewards you with money, and if you are wrong, it takes back your money.

5 Reasons Why People Jump Into Intraday Trading

For ordinary people, intraday trading is an exciting and mysterious activity. The flashing profit-making video ads on YouTube excite most. If you ask any person to come up with one word that comes to their mind when they hear intraday trading, they say either 'money' or 'fear.'

Let me tell you an open secret. Intraday trading is challenging, and a majority of the people lose money at it.

First, we will figure out why people jump into intraday trading despite knowing the majority will lose money. Because if we figure out what the problem is, we can look for ways to solve it.

Why People Jump in to DAY TRADING?

Below are the 5 simple reasons which attract young people towards day trading:

1 – Quick Money