

no doubt, trading workshops provide helpful information, but trying to test everything and take serious bets in one day is foolishness.

Making money consistently is the ultimate goal of every intraday trader. But to achieve this, one has to incorporate four principles in his trading. Each of these principles is equally important and act as solid pillars for massive success in intraday trading.

Image – Four Pillars for Massive Success in Intraday Trading

1 - Technical System

The probability of becoming a winning trader increases only when you stop acting like a losing trader. What do the latter generally do? They open a trading account with a broker, they hear some news about a stock from their friends, brokers, or social media, and they buy some shares. They might make some money with initial trades, but most trades end up as losses. But this is not the right trading approach.

First, you need to find a good intraday strategy that suits your mindset. Three factors play a crucial role while finalizing any intraday trading system:

- 1) The direction of the Price
- 2) The magnitude of the Price