

Image 5.10 – Imbalanced Open Result

The result of the imbalanced open to the downside is clear, and the price also closed near day's low.

Suppose a trader takes a trade after seeing the imbalanced open and the price acceptance below PDL. In that case, there is a high probability that he makes good profits most of the time (entry below the low of the candle, keeping a stop-loss above the high of the candle).

Hence, this system aims to capture only short trades below PDL that have a high probability of a swift move to the downside.
