

Barefoot Burgers

Back in my day we called burgers ‘rissoles’. No matter what you call them, my kids (and grandkids) love these, and yours will too. (Scott is very cheeky but there are no fat drippings in this recipe—it’s been updated over the years. And there were no dill pickles back in Ouyen.)

Serves 4 Preparation time: 20 minutes (plus optional 30 minutes chilling time) Cooking time: 20 minutes

600 g beef mince
1 onion, grated
1 egg, beaten
½ cup (35 g) fresh or ¼ cup (15 g) dried breadcrumbs
⅓ cup (25 g) grated parmesan cheese (optional)
1 teaspoon Dijon mustard (optional)
salt and freshly ground black pepper, to taste
1 tablespoon olive oil
4 slices Swiss cheese
1 onion, extra, thinly sliced
4 soft burger buns (choose wholegrain buns for a healthier option) mayonnaise, sliced dill pickles, shredded lettuce and thinly sliced tomato, to serve

Step 1: Make the burgers

Put the beef mince, onion, egg, breadcrumbs, parmesan and mustard in a bowl. Add salt and pepper to taste. Wet your hands (so they won’t stick) and make the mixture into four burgers.

If you chill them in the fridge for 30 minutes, they’ll hold together better. You could use this time to get the table ready.

Step 2: Cook the burgers