

Your teenager may be able to save more, or perhaps less. Either way, it's a good deal for you, and a total money spinner for them if you're paying them a commission (up to half).

The purpose of this activity is to build your kid's confidence, and that's what the upcoming Money Meal's all about, too.

Feel free to humblebrag to your friends about how much money your 'bill buster' saved you on power (and make sure your teen's within earshot when you do).

Finally, each time a bill comes in you should give your teen a chance to flex their negotiating muscles. In fact, if you've done it right they'll be salivating at your mailbox, waiting for the next opportunity!

Ker-ching!

Money Meal 'shopping list'

- If you have teens, five $20 notes—this helps to make the commission real
- Print off your energy and/or phone bills
- You might want to give your teens a hand in scoring you some better deals:
 - For electricity and gas: energymadeeasy.gov.au
 - For car insurance: check the sneaky 'available for new customers only' deals online
 - Choice: choice.com.au

BAREFOOT MONEY MEAL

THE LAZY $100 CHALLENGE