

If you have little kids or tweens: before the meal, turn on all the lights in the house. As your teenager approaches the table, have the five $20 notes fanned out on top.

ENTRÉE

Play the Family Legends game:

Do you know . . .

- what we do in our family to save money?
- a time we got ripped off?
- a time we negotiated a good deal?

MAIN COURSE:

Little kids and tweens

Explain the turn-off-the-lights game (see page) and (after dinner but before dessert) chase them round the house as they turn off as many lights as possible. If you have more than one young kid, make it a competition.

Once back at the dinner table, explain their new job as light monitor.

You can also explain the petrol price game, and give them an incentive (a treat when you fuel up).

Teens

With your energy and/or phone bills in front of you, explain the $100 Challenge:

If they can save you $100 (or more), you'll pay them a commission (up to half, depending on how you want to work it).

DESSERT:

Do payday (three minutes is all it takes!).
