

McDonald's

Barefoot shares a McFlurry with Jennifer St Ledger, Chief People Officer, McDonald's Australia

Stats: 970 restaurants, 100 000+ staff

Minimum hours per week: 'If you only want one shift, that's fine—you can still do your study and sport'.

How to apply: Go to mcdonalds.com.au/learn/careers

I met Jennifer six months ago, just before her first shift . . . flipping burgers at the Beacon Hill Macca's in Sydney. 'I was trained on every station—serving, grill, drive-thru,' she said proudly. That emphasis on training cuts to the core of the Macca's culture. Their pitch for getting your kid to work there is that they'll give them 'skills for life'. They invest heavily in training—tens of millions of dollars each year—and it shows. That's how a bunch of teenagers help run a multi-billion-dollar business.

Can you give me an inside hack on getting a job at Macca's?

'Applicants don't need to have any experience, and you know what? It's okay if they don't! It means they're going to learn it our way. Teens are sponges. And if they do have experience, fantastic—we can build on that.'