

2. Roll up your sleeves and get the job done.
3. Say please and thank you, and smile while you do it.

MAIN COURSE:

Look over the work documentation . . .

- employment contract
- payslip
- any introductory documents they've got.

Run through each item and answer any questions they have about how it all works—hourly rate, tax, super, contracts.

DESSERT:

Instead of Family Legends, tonight is about your teen's story.

Get them to talk about their new job. Funny stories from their first week. The jobs they'll be doing. How much money they'll earn. The people they're working with. Whatever they want to talk about—make a big deal of it.

Then, do payday (three minutes is all it takes!).

Everyone pitches in and does the dishes (if you're eating at home).

May the Force be with you!

Well done, Yoda—by teaching your kid the three Betty Behaviours in this chapter, you've done a great thing for them.

If they can internalise this lesson, you can be sure that they'll never leave any job without a glowing recommendation to take into their next.

And they'll enjoy their work a lot more, no matter what they do!
