

‘We made an investment for their future that we’ll never regret’

Fi and Rob Ball, Perth, WA

I remember the day my son was diagnosed with Duchenne muscular dystrophy.

It’s not something you ever expect to happen to one of your children. It means his life expectancy is not the same as his twin brother’s. Most boys with this disease end up passing away before they’re thirty.

Knowing that you only have a limited time changes your perspective on what matters.
