

Now, imagine this

In retrospect, your decision to ‘run with the bulls’ in Spain when you had a pulled hammy wasn’t one of your smartest ideas. And stopping for a selfie when the bull was right behind you . . . well, that was just kinda dumb.

But, hey, we all gotta go sometime, right?

Your partner back home in Australia is devastated.

She walks to your study, grabs a key from the top of your bookshelf and unlocks your fireproof, waterproof safe.

As she opens the safe she sees a folder. The cover reads:

Fearless Folder—Everything in One Place—Jim Smith

She takes the folder out of the safe, sits down and opens it. The first page reads:

I love you.

I love you so much that I’ve prepared this folder for you.

It has everything you need to manage my passing.

As she reads through the Fearless Folder she feels a wave of relief wash over her . . . everything really is there.

You’ve included the contact details of people you’ve hand-picked to help her.

You’ve attached your will and documents allocating your power of attorney and your ‘medical attorney’.

You’ve written out a statement of your net worth—a handy guide to make sure all the assets are accounted for.

You’ve detailed all your bank accounts, investments and insurance policies, and all the login details.

You’ve included the password to your email (which you funnel all your day-to-day receipts through), so she can log in and find all your household bills.