

Remind the kids that they'll have to wait till dessert for their pay.

Play the Family Legends game:

Do you know . . .

- who taught Mum and Dad about money?
- what we are saving up for as a family?
- how much Mum or Dad got paid pocket money when we were kids?

MAIN COURSE :

Kids up to age 14

If you haven't already, use your phone to open a zero-fee, high-interest savings account with your existing bank. Name it after your child ('Davin's Savings Account'). If you've already done this, show them the account on your phone with their name on it. Tell them, 'This is where extra money you're given by Grandma or Grandpa (or other family) will be kept till you're older.'

Teens 15 and above

Draw the Serviette Strategy (on page), or just show them the picture in the book.

Once your teen gets a part-time job, they'll need three accounts:

- Splurge: an everyday transaction account (e.g. ING Orange Everyday Youth)
- Smile: a linked online savings account (e.g. ING Savings Maximiser)
- Mojo: another online savings account (e.g. UBank).

Have your teen open these accounts tonight online (they can follow up with the 100 points of ID later).
