

those years, and now even when it's not paying any dividends I'll be good to it."

There is one other type who should stay away from the investment world and that is the person who is Fraught with Sentiment.

Or: "I'd kinda hate to have you sell General Pushing and Shoving—you see, Ellsworth gave it to me as a present on my fortieth birthday. I'll never forget what a wonderful day it was. . . ."

Moral: Stocks and sentiment do not mix.
