

the fundamental purpose of the Securities and Exchange laws—to give the investor adequate information, and to prohibit manipulation and fraud—and we pledge to our customers a complete cooperation with all future efforts designed to strengthen further these fundamental purposes.

No regulations or policies, however, can pretend to guarantee profits nor insure against loss. But we believe our customers can confidently use the Exchanges for investment and speculation with assurance that there are no stacked cards.

OUR RESEARCH DEPARTMENT WILL STICK TO FACTS—CLEARLY PRESENTED

Now as to the question of advising the customer on his investments: we don't believe we can run a brokerage firm and be a good investment counsel at the same time. All that we will have to sell is service and facts. Therefore, we are going to do a little research work on our research department. We don't think there has been anything the matter with our research work, but we want to see that it makes the fullest possible use of all available data, puts that data into the clearest possible form, and then lets the facts speak for themselves. In other words, we are going to provide facts, ungarnished with advice. Advice is going to be out—unless it is specifically asked for, and then only with the approval of one of our partners or managers.

RUMORS AND “HOT TIPS” ARE TABOO

Let's take a look at our registered representatives, or customers' men. They are going to represent an important phase of our new job, principally because we think we are going to
