Now that the Wisdom series has expanded to a third collection with a fourth on its way, I am more than ever indebted to Ruth Mills, my editor at John Wiley & Sons. Continued thanks to Ed Knappman, my agent, for taking care of the fine print.

I am eternally grateful to my family. Diana, my wife, and Pierson, Alex, and Julia, my children, continue to motivate me to work harder (if it's not another pair of shoes, it's something from a toy catalog). Be patient, kids—now that I've done an anthology on investing, I'm hoping to truly reap the rewards, but at the moment, the stock market is facing a great deal of uncertainty.

Thanks also to Rachel Masters for helping with research, to Dave Silberstein for throwing a few good nuggets my way, and to the folks at North Market Street Graphics, who do a great job cleaning up after me.
