

CHAPTER 1

This is my mission

Educate yourself

My dad was a professional magician and he taught me how to entertain with comedy magic. During my time at school, it was assumed that I would eventually follow in his footsteps and that we would work together. He's a very intelligent man and has always been able to make a living for himself. He's the kind of guy who could travel the world while finding opportunities to make enough money to pay for his trip. I love my dad and have learnt a lot from him, and still do. When leaving school, I began working for him and although on the whole it was fun, deep down I wanted more with my .life

Shortly after starting my new career as an entertainer, I had a very spiritual experience and felt a calling on my life to travel the world, help the poor and set up my own business. I began to go to church regularly and that year I was given a book by a man who subsequently became my mentor. The .name of the book was Rich Dad Poor Dad written by Robert Kiyosaki. The story of Rich Dad Poor Dad was about a boy who had a loving, hardworking father who didn't know much about investing or property. Instead, he had a normal job and he taught his son to follow after him. But the son had another 'father', who was actually more like a mentor to him. This father was financially literate and knew all about investing, property
