

weeks before my 18th birthday. I was absolutely over the moon! Not only had I bought a house before the age of 18, but I was set to do it again and again.

This property was giving me a profit just shy of £1,000 per month and has done so ever since. I was still living at home and had very few overheads. I was also making extra money by sourcing properties for my mentor and finding tenants for the other investors with whom I had become friends.

Discipline your disappointment

After buying my first 'No Money Down' property I was ready to go again and found my next perfect property. However, just three days before we were due to exchange contracts I received a bad phone call. The mortgage company that I had lined up ready for the deal, Mortgage Express, were about to close their firm. In fact, the whole method of buying and remortgaging was no longer possible as lenders were now scared to lend. !The credit crunch was coming and it was coming big.

!I was absolutely gutted. All these expensive courses, all these dreams, gone.

I had always been trained to celebrate my success, but I had not yet mastered the art of disciplining my disappointment. Everybody went into a frenzy and many investors jumped ship.

.The days of buying property with no money were over ... apparently.

I went on a programme called the Millionaire Mind Intensive. It was incredible and I learned all about money and passive income, but more importantly, I learned about myself. I learned that I was responsible for my success and there are endless possibilities to be creative. I learned that it wasn't about the economy or the rules – my results were down to me.

I attended endless personal development programmes, became very well read and practised martial arts with my Wing Chun teacher. I developed a
