

the only thing that is about to rocket up is house prices and rents! Let's get .real

Most people will always think of a reason why not to do something until it's too late and then they kick themselves. Please don't be one of those people.
.Be smart and start investing now

,As one smart person put it

”.Don't wait to buy property, buy property and wait“

?What about after the expansion? Will house prices drop again

On average, property prices double around every ten years. You can go back through history and see for yourself. This has been the case for about as far as we can see. Some will argue that it's every twelve years that prices .double, but the bottom line is that they go up drastically over time

?Is property investing risky

When I was at school, if I had told my teachers that I wanted to become a property investor they would have said that it was risky. They would have
