

per cent of the investors asked, “How much are they selling for?” That was
.their first question

.The pretty one was selling for £110,000, the ugly one for £150,000

I told them they didn't have to decide just yet, they could ask another .question

Seventy-five per cent of the investors then asked, “Where are they ”?located

I told them. The pretty house for £110,000 is in County Durham. The ugly
.house for £150,000 is in Birmingham

Based on the pictures and these two answers, I asked them which house would they buy if they had to choose right now. Sixty-five per cent said the pretty house in County Durham. The remaining 35 per cent said the ugly
.one in Birmingham

I told them that they had one final question before deciding which one to buy. Of course, this was only an experiment and they would not actually be