

buying either, but most of the investors thought long and hard. They had .one final question to ask before it was decision time

Forty per cent of them asked miscellaneous questions such as, “Where is the nearest hospital?”, “Is there a back garden?”, “What are the neighbours
.like?”, and so on

Finally, the rest asked the question I had been waiting for all along. The number one question that you should be asking straight away. And that is ...
”?!“What is the rent

.The rent on the pretty house in Durham for £110,000 was £400 per month

The rent on the ugly house in Birmingham for £150,000 was £1,500 per .month

I asked one last time, which one would you buy? At this point 100 per cent of the investors said they would buy the house in Birmingham, giving them
.£1,500 rental income

The moral of this story is that even professional investors constantly look for the wrong things because of their emotions. This business is all about
.formulas and not about feelings

The ugly houses are best

Your portfolio is not for show and you will rarely visit it, if at all. When I’m
