

deal-sourcing companies around that will wash their hands if the deal turns
.bad

Don't reinvent the wheel

Most investors squash their passive income, buying in areas that they like rather than sticking to the template. They waste tens of thousands of pounds on unnecessary refurbishments and give themselves a headache dealing .with rubbish letting agents

.Don't be like most investors

After spending years doing market research on HMOs and surveying my tenants, I have come up with this five-point checklist. Please don't add a sixth point, such as "It needs to be close to my house, or it needs to have a ".pretty garden

You can either be financially free and treat this as a business, or be comfortable and treat this as a nice hobby. When I started writing this book I was in California. As I write, I'm in a beautiful resort in Thailand. If there's a problem with one of my HMOs back in England, does it make any difference where it is in the country? NO! Because I have systems in place
