

meantime, we will take over the property and pay you £500 per month. This ".would accumulate to £18,000 on top of the £120,000

Of course, they had lots of questions. Did I answer their questions? Of course not! I followed the process explained in Chapter 6 which resulted in Dan having a No Money Down Deal that he rented out as an HMO. The profit from this deal amounted to £700 per month and it gave Dan the option three years down the line to decide whether to complete the purchase !or to just accept the £25,200 he has already made in rent

This opportunity came as a result of Dan being daring. How many of these ?properties would you need in order to become financially free

At the end of the term you could buy the property with the rent you had
.accumulated, or you could sell it on to another investor

Be creative

,I had a phone call from a friend named Keisha in February 2015. She said

Samuel, I know you teach people to buy properties with no money. I've“ just turned 22. I have no money and, in fact, I am completely broke. I have seen you are running a training programme next month and I really want to come but cannot even afford the train fare from London. Samuel, as a ”?friend, do you think I should come

This really put me on the spot. If I said no, she could miss the opportunity of a lifetime. If I said yes, she could come and not be able to secure a No Money Down Deal and be left financially even worse off after paying the tuition and travel costs. I remembered my story and how people had
