

Chapter 1

What Is Love?

In 2011, Tom Haverford and Donna Meagle introduced us to a concept that would change a generation forever:

Treat Yo Self.

Not familiar? Once a year Donna and Tom spend a day, specifically October 13th, treating themselves. What do they treat themselves to?

Clothes? Treat Yo Self!
Fragrances? Treat Yo Self!
Massages? Treat Yo Self!
Mimosas? Treat Yo Self!
Fine. Leather. Goods?
Treat. Yo. Self.
It's the best day of the year.

Even if you didn't watch the series Parks and Recreation, you've probably heard the phrase "Treat Yo Self." While we all love that monologue, we love what happens at the end of the episode even more. Tom and Donna invite Ben, their uptight coworker, to partake in Treat Yo Self Day. Ben has a hard time relaxing, and after a day full of pampering and shopping, all he's "treated" himself to is a bag of socks, which infuriates Tom. Donna, in her transcendent wisdom, reasons with Tom that maybe this version of Treat Yo Self Day works for them and maybe Ben needs his own version. She asks Ben if he could blow big money on one thing—not sock money—what would it be? He thinks about it for a TV
