

provided you:

Cut down your infrastructure (chapter 8)

Cutting down your infrastructure means you:

Move (chapter 5)

Sell your vehicles (chapter 8)

If you retire in the United States:

Go south (chapter 5)

Live where the jobs aren't (chapter 5)

Once you set up your U.S. base, you may want to:

Try living abroad for three to six months (chapter 5)

The best way to live abroad, whether for some or all of the year, is to:

Keep calm; you can always return to the United States (chapter 5)

Live like a resident, not like a tourist (chapter 5)

Rent, don't buy (chapter 5)

Choose hotels that offer what you need and nothing more (chapter 8)

Learn the language (chapter 5)

Go with the flow (chapter 5)

Don't criticize, complain, or compare (chapter 5)

Once you're retired, you:

Spend on yourself, not on your assets (chapter 8)

Spend more than $50 a day if you must (chapter 8)

Remember the Coin Toss Law: Less is more (chapter 8)

Do some soul-searching to decide when retirement makes sense for you. The idea is to: