

cheap nor too generous. He or she doesn't throw away money, but also doesn't hoard it. Mostly, it's a good sign if having frank and honest financial discussions doesn't cause your partner to break out in hives and run in the opposite direction.

Dating is a time of discovery. You want to know if your potential partner is $200,000 in debt. You want to know what kind of financial future he or she envisions for him- or herself, because it's one you're going to share.