

MIDLIFE MONEY MATTERS & YOUR FINANCIAL LEGACY

My brother, Shane, and my mother, Georgette, on the dock at Lake Geneva in December 2001. Georgette was a shrewd investor; she drilled the never-spend-the-principal mantra into our heads at an early age. She never bought a stock that did not pay a dividend. Today's billion-dollar O'Leary Funds Mutual Funds Company was built on her value-yield philosophy.
