

I'll tell you one thing: No matter your opinion of gold diggers, we can all learn something from them—the importance of talking about money in relationships. How can one not have a grudging respect for that?