

That's compound interest, kids, the most beautiful math there is, and it was designed with you in mind. You're young. You've got beauty, strength, and vitality, but you've also got time on your side. Take advantage of it and watch your money grow.

If you are planning on having a family, make sure you partner with someone who will make up for your deficits. While I was trying to make money, my wife did a lot of work teaching our kids money smarts.

Money Mistake: You Want Something Before You Can Afford It

THE FIX: GET CREDIT SMART BEFORE GETTING A CREDIT CARD

At seventeen, I wanted—no, needed—a new stereo system. And not just any stereo system. I wanted one that included a Rotel RP-1000Q turntable, a McIntosh tube amp, and Bose 801 speakers. I had a real job, working part-time hosing the crusted gunk off the sides of garbage trucks, so I could justify the purchase of a high-end stereo
