

Taken in 1987, when Linda, my future wife, and I were still dating. I am all about a long courtship. It helps determine if you are compatible with your partner. Sure, romance matters, but in the long run getting married is as much a business decision as a romantic one. Raising a family is no small undertaking. Choosing a person who shares your life goals is very important.