

CHAPTER 10

A LETTER TO YOUR TEENAGER, FROM UNCLE KEVIN

I know a thing or two about teenagers. I've got Trevor still living at home, and Savannah has just barely crossed the threshold into adulthood. One of the things I know about teens is that they don't always like to take advice from their parents. It doesn't matter how good the advice is—the minute you try to dispense it, they stop listening.

Interestingly, other people can give your teens advice and there is a chance they will listen. So, I'm going to make it easy for you. Uncle Kevin has a lot to say to your teenager. Hand this book over to your adolescent, because this chapter is for them.

Dear Teen,

Uncle Kevin here. Yes, that Uncle Kevin, the grumpy old geezer with no hair who you've seen on TV. Here's what you need to know: it was once the other way around! I was just like you! I had a ton of hair, but no money! Let me tell you something: the other way around is better, I assure you.

So your parents are reading a book on love and money. "Yeah?" you say. "What's that got to do with me?" I'll tell you.
