

The mother-daughter team of Dani and Tracey Noonan is one of the most successful stories in Shark Tank history. They took a commodity like cupcakes, branded them Wicked Good Cupcakes and then came on the show. America loved them and their sales exploded from $15,000 per week to over $200,000! Luckily they are excellent managers, and were able to successfully execute their growth plan. Their business is one of the best investments I've ever made!

What's their secret? Tracey and Dani aren't afraid to work hard—they were working 13- and 14-hour days when they made their pitch. They're smart and business-savvy, and they're cashing in on one of North America's hottest new trends. But the real story of Wicked Good Cupcakes is the strength of the mother-daughter relationship between Tracey and Dani. When it comes to running a family business, this dynamic duo is doing a wicked good job.

I'm a big believer in entrepreneurship—I wouldn't be on Shark Tank and Dragons' Den if I wasn't. I'm especially high on businesses where a smart entrepreneur has launched a successful family business. I've seen them in various combos: parent-child, brother-sister, spouse-
