

9.5

Identifying Your Strengths and Differentiators

Your strengths and differentiators are the cornerstone of your competitive advantage as a consulting firm.

These unique qualities, capabilities, and attributes set you apart from others in the industry and position you as the preferred choice for clients seeking specialised solutions.

This section discusses strategies for identifying your strengths and differentiators, conducting a comprehensive SWOT analysis, and leveraging your unique strengths in client engagements.

Self-Assessment of Skills, Expertise, and Experience

The first step in identifying your strengths and differentiators is thoroughly assessing your skills, expertise, and experience. This reflective exercise should involve an honest evaluation of your individual and team members' qualifications, certifications, areas of specialisation, and track record of success.

