

At line G, when price reached the high of A, she starting using the trailing stop. It took her out of the stock on the day the stock peaked, H, but her stop was at 50.62 (a penny below the prior day's low). On the trade she made $5.43 a share for a 12% gain in 10 days. On an annualized basis, that's over 400%.

“Very nice,” she said. “To celebrate,” she told me, “you can buy me dinner.”
