

Figure 15.4 Shown is a bump-and-run reversal with a pointed-looking first bu...

Figure 15.5 Shown is a bump-and-run reversal trendline and parallel warning ...

Figure 15.6 As described in the Sample Trade, Jenny raised her sell price as...

Chapter 16

Figure 16.1 This bearish butterfly is really bullish. Price continues the up...

Figure 16.2 This bearish butterfly sees price drop from D and stall just bel...

Figure 16.3 Price turned down at D but doesn't drop far when price continues...

Figure 16.4 Susan decided to trade this bearish butterfly.

Chapter 17

Figure 17.1 This bullish butterfly leads to a fast recovery.

Figure 17.2 This bullish butterfly is at XABCD and has a downward breakout, ...

Figure 17.3 This bullish butterfly fails to see price turn higher after D.

Figure 17.4 Mary traded this bullish butterfly for a quick 12% profit.

Chapter 18

Figure 18.1 A cloudbank lasts for years until the 2007–2009 bear market take...

Figure 18.2 Two cloudbanks appear on this chart \(A and D\), with the first on...

Figure 18.3 Price fails to recover after the bear market plunge.

Figure 18.4 A 4-month simple moving average provides a buy signal.