

---

If you become married by common law and later decide you want to end your relationship, you have to go through a regular legal divorce. To avoid becoming common-law married when it's not your intention, if you live in a state that recognizes common-law marriages, you and your live-in partner may want to sign a statement saying it's not your intention to be married.