

For technophobes or those with the simplest of tax returns, there's nothing more satisfying than preparing tax returns with pen and paper. However, if you file electronically, you can get your money in nine to sixteen days if you have your refund automatically deposited to your bank account. If you file a paper return, expect it to take at least twice that time, depending on when you file.