

necessarily mean better quality. It makes sense to pay more for an item if that brand or model has a better record or costs less to maintain. Do your research, talk to others who have bought a similar item, talk to experts in the field, and read. Then try to balance cost and reward.